Ted Reicher has been writing and teaching drill for competitive bands, drum corps and winter guards for 24 years. Before becoming a fulltime visual designer and music arranger, he was Director of Bands and Chairman of the Music Department at Davenport Central High School in Davenport, IA. Under Mr. Reicher's direction, the marching band, three concert bands and jazz bands at Central received straight Division I ratings at Iowa High School Music Association Festivals and Central's Marching Blue Devils were the only band from Iowa to compete in the Bands of America Grand National and Regional Championships.

Mr. Reicher has been the visual designer for bands throughout the United States and for eight years served as director, program coordinator and visual designer for the Colt Cadets Drum and Bugle Corps of Dubuque, IA

Mr. Reicher is an active composer and arranger and maintains a private brass studio for students in the Iowa/Illinois Quad Cities area. He is active in the Iowa Bandmasters Association and International Trumpet Guild and is sought after as a clinician/consultant for marching bands throughout the Midwest. On the side, Mr. Reicher is an avid golfer, carrying a scratch handicap for anyone looking for a good game!
